Franky Rizado

"It's not easy to describe my sound. This is because I play a large spectrum of the house genre, as long as it fits into one set. I do have a big focus on drums and percussion throughout my sets and productions. So if I had to try to put it into a genre, it's groovy Latin house with lots of vibe!" – Franky Rizado

Few could have predicted the way in which Dutch house blew up in recent years. It's now undeniably one of the biggest currencies in global dance music, with everyone from hip-hop megastars to the reggaeton community embracing its chunky, syncopated style in some way, shape or form. You've heard about your Jacks and your Lukes; now it's time for one Franky Rizado to step into the spotlight.

Serendipitously born during the second summer of love – acid house's take-off year, 198...
